

BUSY SENDING OUT LITERATURE

Byrd's Campaign Committee at Work
—Langley's Record is Hammered
Unmercifully—All Over But the Shouting.

We were furnished with a campaign document which the Democratic headquarters have been sending out from this city in great profusion. Judge Evans says that they have plastered the Tenth District with the pamphlet, and that it is one of the best vote getters that they have had. It is a pamphlet gotten up which shows the price of a two weeks' store bill in 1896 as compared with a two weeks' store bill in 1910. The two store bills and articles are as follows:

ST. LOUIS PRICES
Two Weeks' Store Bill in Oct., 1896
2 lbs. salt pork	50
5 lbs. pork chops	50
5 lbs. pork ribs	30
4 lbs. smoked shoulder	30
2 lbs. sausage	15
5 lbs. lard	35
5 lbs. corned beef	25
4 lbs. butter	20
2 dozen eggs	20
1 lb. cheese	13
1 bbl. flour	3.50
4 lbs. chicken	40
21 lbs. sugar	1.00
2 lbs. steak	20
5 lbs. roast beef	50
Total	$8.25
Two Weeks' Store Bill in Oct., 1910
2 lbs. salt pork	1.25
5 lbs. pork chops	1.25
5 lbs. pork ribs	7
4 lbs. smoked shoulder	5
2 lbs. sausage	3
5 lbs. lard	8
5 lbs. corned beef	62 1/2
4 lbs. butter	1.20
2 dozen eggs	54
1 lb. cheese	56
1 bbl. flour	5.60
4 lbs. chicken	7
21 lbs. sugar	1.10
2 lbs. steak	3
5 lbs. roast beef	1.00
Total	$15.59 1/2

It then shows that the Republicans have done all in their power to assist the Beef Trust, the Sugar Trust, the Flour Trust, and the Clothing Trust; and that Langley voted for all of these and for the biggest trust of all—the Tariff Trust, and that he has voted in every way to put a tax upon the living necessities of life. It is certainly a very catchy and instructive campaign document and puts the questions clearly and concisely before the voters. The headquarters report that this pamphlet has been in great demand by the miners and wage-earners throughout the Sandy Valley.

They have another very attractive campaign article which they have sent out extensively, quoting from four Republican Senators on the tariff issue. From Senator Cummins of Iowa is the following:

"The Payne-Aldrich tariff law is an open and explicit repudiation of our platform and a perversion of the protective theory."

From Senator Dooliver of Iowa, is the following:

"The Payne-Aldrich tariff bill is only a scheme to rob people and to increase the holdings of the gigantic syndicates."

From Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin is the following:

"This bill (Payne-Aldrich tariff) increases the cost of living in every home in the land."

From Senator Clapp of Minnesota is the following:

"The new tariff law has cost, and is costing the American people millions on millions of dollars in increased cost of living. And if the Payne-Aldrich bill had been beaten, those millions would have been saved to the people."

This pamphlet is sent to the Insurgent Republicans of the district, of whom there are many thousands, and of whom a complete mailing list is in the headquarters. The pamphlet sows further that Langley voted for the Payne-Aldrich bill; that he supported Cannon in every measure, even to voting to buy him an automobile and the Insurgent Republicans are then asked whether they will stand by Langley or by the most prominent and influential Republicans in their party.

The campaign headquarters here have been furnished with most excellent literature, but much has been prepared by those in charge and it is safe to say that the voters of the Tenth District have been better educated upon the questions at issue in this campaign than in any of the five preceding campaigns.

The reports from every county are to the effect that the constant hammering which has been made on Langley's record by the Democratic literature and in which he is shown to be the friend of monopolies and corporations rather than the friend of the people, has pierced his armor in many places, and that he is undoubtedly a badly beaten candidate.

Everybody is wearing a broad smile at Democratic headquarters today and arrangements have been made to receive special reports from all of the counties as soon as the vote is counted. They say there that it is all over but the shouting.

NO SENSATION IS ANTICIPATED

Only Small Inaccuracies and Discrepancies Discovered By State Inspector McKenzie R. Todd.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 4.—McKenzie R. Todd, State Inspector and Examiner, Wednesday filed his report of his investigation of public printing with the Printing Commission. After a discussion of the report by the commission it was decided not to make public inspector Todd's findings until the representative of the printing company doing the contract work could appear before the commission and be heard. It is alleged that inaccuracies and discrepancies of a small nature were found by the inspector but that there will be nothing of a sensational nature to disclose. The contractors will be heard next Monday.

HOLDING OF DARK TOBACCO

Which Was Pooled With the Green River Growers' Association is Sold at From $6 to $9.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Nov. 4.—The entire holding of dark tobacco pooled with the Green River Growers Association between seventeen million and 25,000,000 pounds has been sold.

The sales were concluded at a meeting held here Wednesday morning. The prices ranged $9 to $6 for leaf and lugs, $3 for trash.

The purchase will amount to $1,275,000.

The buyers are the American Tobacco Company, the Imperial Tobacco Company, James Hodge, Richard O'Flynn, St. Burns and Gallagher Limited.

The American will receive 10,000,000 pounds, 3,000,000 to be delivered at Owensboro. The Imperial takes 4,000,000.

TOBACCO SALE.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 4.—One hundred and six-seven hogheads of pooled tobacco were offered for sale Thursday by the Burley Tobacco Society, and prices ranged from $18.50 to $5.40, making an average of $10.40.

The highest price was received for grade C2, while A5 brought the lowest figure of the sale. Seventeen hogheads were rejected.

The offerings for Friday will probably be heavier and will comprise Scott and Fayette county tobaccos as they did Thursday.

FAMOUS TENOR IS TO APPEAR HERE.

We are to have a visit from the famous opera star with his specially selected company said to be the finest ever heard in the English language and embracing the foremost stars on the American stage. The chorus is the pick of the voices of all of Mr. Sheehan's companies in order to have it in keeping with the all star cast of principals. The engagement is for one night only, Thursday, November 10th.

NO PREACHING.

There will be no preaching for the new Baptists Friday night, because of the fact that the courthouse had been previously engaged.

Schools with commercial course, 1
The counties which have not established high schools according to law to date are as follows: Carter, Cumberland, Edmondson, Floyd, Garrard, Jackson, Knox, Lee, Leslie, Owsley, Rowan, Russell, Taylor, Trigg and Wayne.

SAYS SCHEME IS "FRAME UP"

Charles E. Erbstein Declares State Attorney Has Been Trying to "Get Him" For Some Time.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The Daily News Wednesday stated without reservation that a true bill charging bribery of a juror in the Lee O'Neil Browne case has been voted, naming as defendant Charles E. Erbstein, one of Browne's attorneys.

According to statements given to States Attorney Wayman by Gran McCutcheon, one of the Brown jurors, and Harry T. Stacy, Stacy acted as a go-between for McCutcheon and Erbstein.

Stacy said he was dissatisfied with the $250 which he and McCutcheon divided as alleged payment for McCutcheon's vote for acquittal. He expected that his work would put him on "easy street," with a good political job and when he was unable to secure more money he resolved to tell his story.

Erbstein, in a recent interview, declared the whole case was a "frame up" on the part of the State's Attorney, who he said had been trying to "get him" for a long time.

YOUNG HERO SAVES FATHER

Five-Year-Old Child Goes Alone in the Dark to Bring Assistance For His Helpless Parent.

STANFORD, Ky., Nov. 4.—Lying in a burning house and unable to move because he was a cripple, John Hubbard, of near Stanford, was saved from burning to death Tuesday night by the heroism of his five-year-old son, who, though too small to help his father escape, left the house in the dark, went a considerable distance to a neighbor's house and returned with help just in time for his father to be saved a few moments before the roof of the house crashed in.

Hubbard was unconscious from the heat and is still in a very serious condition. He waked during the night while alone with the five-year-old child and found that the house was on fire, but he was unable to move.

He awakened the little boy and explained the situation so the baby mind would understand it. The brave little fellow said he was not afraid to go out alone and away he ran. He reached the neighbor's home, where his cries and pounding at the door awakened the occupants, who reached Hubbard's home just in time to save him.

AUDITORIUM.

Another splendid bill is booked to open at the Auditorium theatre Friday night in James O'Neill, a novelty of the best acts of its kind and has always been appreciated by a large audience. The feature act on the bill is the "two musical Graces" featuring the violin and cello. These young ladies received their musical training in Europe and will present a musical act rarely seen in a town the size of Winchester. The pictures are extra good for Friday night. A special matinee has been arranged for the ladies and children for Saturday at 2:30 o'clock and each lady present will be presented with a beautiful souvenir picture free. (These pictures retail for 25 cents at any store.) Every child buying a ticket will be given a nice box of candy. The house will be thoroughly heated, so come early and enjoy a good show.

CONSPIRACY TO SECURE CLAIMS

By Violent Means is Charge Against Nine Prominent Ranchmen of Western Nebraska.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 4.—An indictment against nine prominent ranchmen of western Nebraska, charging conspiracy to drive from their claims at points of guns homesteaders who took quarter sections of the semi arid land under the Kinkaid homestead law, was returned by the Federal grand jury Thursday.

Those indicted are Perry S. Yeast of Hyannis, Neb.; his son, Frank W. Yeast, Leslie E. Ballinger, M. C. Hubbel, Emil Anderson, Wilmot Z. Emerson, Harry Sutton, Boone B. Hawthorne, and Dr. Harry H. Huff.

There are four counts in the indictments and specific overt acts mentioned indicate an unusual frontier condition. According to charges made in the indictment Yeast and his associates carried their efforts so far as to secure incarceration in an insane asylum at Hastings, Nebraska, of one of their alleged victims.

APPOINTMENTS ARE ANNOUNCED

Prof. McHenry Rhoades and Prof. Coates, of Richmond, Are Elected as State Supervisors.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 4.—During a visit to Lexington Wednesday State Superintendent of Public Instruction Ellsworth Regenstein announced the selection of the two State supervisors, agreed upon by the General Education Board, one for the city and one for the rural schools of Kentucky. Prof. McHenry Rhoades, superintendent of schools at Owensboro, and Prof. Coates, superintendent at Richmond.

Both men are Democrats in politics, but politics was put aside when the general board of which Dr. Wickliffe Rose of Washington, D. C., is at the head, took up the matter of the elections. The positions are permanent, pay $3,000 per year and expenses, and the idea in appointing them is a "follow-up" plan of the men who inaugurated the "whirlwind campaign" during the administration of State Superintendent Crabbe two years ago.

One of the supervisors is to visit all city schools and the other the rural schools, with the idea of bringing about uniformity in methods of instruction and general school work in Kentucky, and to suggest latest methods to the teachers and instructors.

The supervisors are to have their headquarters in the State Department at Frankfort.

STRIKE DRAWS NEAR TO CLOSE

Feeling of the Garment Workers' Strikers is That the Tide Has Turned in Their Favor.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Peace offerings by several clothing concerns, full settlement by two companies, several minor riot scares which failed to materialize and a report that the garment workers' strike would extend to Eastern cities constituted Thursday's activities in the garment workers' strike here.

There is a well defined feeling among labor leaders that the backbone of the opposition is broken and there is little fear that it will spread to other cities. The feeling of the strikers that the tide has turned in their favor came with the signing of an agreement by Cohn Rissman & Company and Alschuler, Dreyer & Company by which 500 men are to return to work for each firm.

Patrolmen were rushed to the shop dispersed the crowd with their clubs and arrested one girl.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

OPIE REED.

Mr. Editor:

I see by The News that my old friend, Opie Reed, is coming to Winchester this week and asks the people to come out and see him. I hope they will accept the invitation unanimously, for Opie is a good thing, but speaking of seeing him, did you ever hear the story about what he looked like? No? Well, listen: He was booked to appear on one occasion in a town much more rural than Winchester, which is really a metropolis, don't you know, and he arrived during the afternoon. When he had sandpapered a portion of the dust of travel off of himself he sallied forth to have an introductory look at the town and incidentally to see if the bill posters had done their duty and put him right before the public. As he strolled along the principal street he passed a group of natives loitering on the corner, who became as much interested in the stranger as the stranger was in their town. They knew him from his lithographs in the windows and were discussing him as he approached them. Just after he had got back, one of them spat out a mouthful of tobacco and said: "Huh, I don't know what kind of a show that feller gives, but his street parade is rotten." And Opie didn't even turn around and thank him.

No affidavit accompanies this horrid tale, and it may have happened to some other distinguished public performer, but whether it does or not after Winchester has looked upon Opie it will know whether the story fits or not.

Yours,

W. J. LAMPTON.

A SUGGESTION.

To the Editor
It has come to the attention of the writer that many good cooks are unable to go out to work on account of having small children to care for.

A good solution of this condition would be for some good negro woman who has a large enough house to care for twelve or fifteen children to take in children for a small sum per week thus assuring herself a fair return for her service, and permitting the mothers to secure a livelihood.

SPICER GETS LIFE SENTENCE

Breathitt Bad Man is Sent to Penitentiary For the Killing of Fugate.

A special dispatch from Attorney J. J. C. Back at Jackson to Mr. Sam Jett of this city, reports the conviction and sentencing to the penitentiary for life of Asbury Spicer in the Breathitt Circuit Court. The charge was the killing of Fugate. Spicer was one of the Hargis clan and took part in the killing of Dr. Cox and James Cockrell. He is an all around bad man. Because of the support of his employers, he has in the past been able to escape punishment for his crimes. This conviction with others that have recently been made in Breathitt shows that conditions there have changed and that evil doers in the future may expect to be given what they deserve under the law.

ARGUMENTS IN LISLE CASE

Evidence Closed Friday Morning and Attorneys Talk to Jury—Case Will Go to Jury Saturday.

The arguments by attorneys in the Claiborne Lisle will ease began Friday and by Saturday the jury will have the case.

The only important witness to testify Thursday was Mr. Jas. P. Winn who prepared the will for Mr. Lisle just before his death. Mr. Winn was a friend of Mr. Lisle and seemed to be greatly moved when giving his testimony and on one or two occasions when questions in regard to matters between him and his deceased client, broke down and cried.

He testified in substance as follows:

Jas. Winn's part of cross examination: "It was dark when I got back from the store. Mr. Lisle told me he wanted to talk to me privately and every one went out. I did the writing with a lead pencil. Mr. Lisle told me first what he wanted and then I began to write. He dictated every clause as they appear there with the exception of four. He cried some when he was talking about Mrs. Couchman. Nothing ever occurred between myself and Mrs. Couchman that would cause hard feelings. He said that Mrs. Couchman had at one time offended him and that he would distribute his money where it would do most good. I did anticipate trouble over the will. After writing the codicil at my office on a letter head, I went to the Elks' Club got some paper there and made another copy of it. When the stenographer had finished writing the will and the codicil I took it to the Winchester Bank procured an envelope and put it in then sealed it up and gave it to Mr. Clay Hodgkin to give to his grandfather. Mr. Claiborne Lisle of this Sunday told Clay to get the attorney for him and also J. M. Stevenson. He said to me in a way that he wanted me to see J. M. Stevenson and retain him before any one else gets him. I heard Mr. Lisle tell Clay to go to his box and get the deed to Mrs. Minerva Hodgkin and put it to record."

Mr. Lisle gave as his reason for not giving Mrs. Hodgkin her deed was for the reason that this was his home.

The other witnesses to testify during Thursday afternoon were Messrs. J. W. Poynter, N. H. Witherspoon, J. M. Hodgkin, R. D. Hunter, N. K. Foster, H. L. Stevens, John McCord and J. D. Eubank.

Both sides in the Claiborne Lisle case finished their testimony Friday morning. Only rebuttal testimony was heard and Ernest Duckworth, Ben Duckworth and Mrs. Frank Couchman were on the stand.

Mr. D. L. Pendleton for the contestants made the opening speech to the jury. Mr. H. M. Stevenson, for the proponents will follow him leaving Col. John R. Allen for the contestants and Mr. Harding for proponents to close. Four hours has been allotted to each side in which to make their arguments. The jury will be given the case Friday night.

REGISTRATION FALLS SHORT

In Comparison With 1908 Democrats Lose 78, the Republicans 79, the Independents 5.

The total registration for Winchester falls short this year compared with 1908—166 from 1790 to 1624. In 1908 the Republicans had 891; the Democrats 867; Independents, 32. For 1910 the Republicans have 812; Democrats 789; Independents 27. The Democrats lose 78; the Republicans 79; the Independents 5. The relative strength of the parties is practically the same. In 1908 the Republican plurality was 24. This year it is 23. The fact that in 1908 a President was elected will account in a measure for the short registration this year.

J. W. LANGLEY ANSWERS BYRD

Three Thousand People Hear the Byrd-Langley Debate at Prestonburg, October 25.

Hon. A. Floyd Byrd, Democratic candidate for Congress, was billed to speak at Prestonburg, Oct. 26. His opponent, John W. Langley, desiring that the people of his home county should hear both sides of the question at issue, announced some few days before the speaking that he would ask a division of time at this appointment. Nearly all the voters of Floyd county were present and heard the discussion. Mr. Langley took Mr. Byrd to task on a number of the charges which Mr. Byrd had made against him and proved by indisputable evidence that Mr. Byrd had made the charges without the facts to support them. The following is that part of Mr. Langley's speech in answer to those charges: Ladies and Gentlemen, My Neighbors, and Friends:

I see in this great audience the familiar faces of hundreds of friends who have known me from the cradle to the present moment; friends who knew me when I was a barefooted boy on the farm over on Middlecreek; who knew me with a blue-back spelling book, and a thumb paper, and a bottle of milk, and a piece of corn-bread, and a stone bruise, wending my way to and from the little log school-house on the hill side; who knew me when, as a peddler boy, I sold ginger cakes up at the election place and Roman Beauty apples on the streets here at Prestonburg; when I dreamed of the future and longed for the days to come when I could secure an education and take my place among the men of the world. Dear old school days; dear old memories that cluster around them. Never shall I cease to cherish them nor to take pride in the fact that I began life in that way, and that I know what it is to struggle against adversity and to part the driftwood of life in this world. Looking backward to those days and into your faces here this afternoon, I am conscious of having done nothing of which I am ashamed; conscious, on the contrary, of having done everything in my power to make an honorable and useful man, and to serve the people of this District, since I have been their Representative, to the utmost of my ability. Thirty years ago, Mr. Byrd, you and I were school boys here together. I came to town from the hills of Middlecreek, and you came from the hills of a neighboring county. We were both struggling for an education, and both no doubt imbued with an ambition to make our marks in the world. We formed a friendship then which, so far as any words or acts of mine are concerned, has never been broken. That was a long time ago. Our pathways have diverged since then, but they now cross again. We are here together today, the candidates of our respective parties—two great political organizations—for a great office. Every year of the long period I have preserved the recollection of that early friendship, and have neither said nor done in this campaign anything that is in violation of it. I wish that you could say the same thing to these people here this afternoon. There is no need of us wasting time in quibbling about which one of us should have challenged the other for a joint discussion, or whether one is afraid to meet the other, except that I might call attention to the fact that this is the second time I have gone to your appointments and asked for a division of time, once invited and once uninvited, while you have not come to a single one of mine. There is no need of wasting the time of this crowd over that. We are here today and we are having a joint discussion now. (Applause.) There are some things that you have said here this afternoon that I am going to answer, and other things that you have said at other points, but which you refrained from saying here, that I am also going to answer.

Let us begin first with the statement that I refused to be enumerated as a citizen of Pikeville, because, as Mr. Byrd alleges, I said that I had already been enumerated in Washington. The only object you could have had in seeking to make the people believe this to be true is to sustain your contention, if you can, that I am not identified with their interests, and for the purpose of injuring

SHORT BALLOT REFORM.

(From Boston Common.)

In Detroit there has been organized a Municipal League which has undertaken the task of illuminating city politics by publishing the records of all candidates for public office. Recently it published its recommendations, giving about two inches of newspaper space to each candidate. Small as this amount of light is, it required upward of two full pages in the newspaper to cover all the candidates (400 in number). This is probably all the newspaper discussion that will be had regarding nine-tenths of the candidates, and by that measure information the Detroit voters who are not actively engaged in politics are expected to make their decisions.

The hopelessness of the situation is relieved by the recommendation of the League that the charter be amended by referendum so as to simplify the government at the point of contact with the people. The League's hope is that by securing the submission of charter amendments to referendum, vote, the people will so modify their form of government that they will not be required to choose at any one time more officials than they can select wisely.

Every elected official ought to be conspicuous before his constituents. If they cannot see him and know him, the people's decision at the polls is of small value. When the delegated powers of government are so subdivided among a multitude of elected officials as they are in Detroit, the people are constantly voting for some official without knowing anything about them, and are blindly relying upon political parties which by their very nature are defenseless against internal corruption.

A political party cannot protect itself against contamination. It must open its doors to every voter, good or bad, and corrupt men enter these parties and acquire great influence. Anything which simplifies politics and makes the people independent of "tickets" will be vigorously opposed by such politicians.

The Commission Form of Government, has succeeded in many cities because it puts all the power into the hands of conspicuous officials. This or some other short ballot form of government, such as the English Council System, should be adopted in Detroit, to give the voters a government which they can oversee.

But Detroit is not the only city and Michigan is not the only State which needs the Short Ballot.

The short Ballot movement is attracting increasing attention all over the country and its advocates have united under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson of Princeton, to form an association known as "The Short Ballot Organization." This organization maintains a publicity bureau in New York to explain the Short Ballot idea to the American people, and although the association is very young, its propaganda has been received with marked favor.

PERRYGRAPHS.

For years the politicians have led the people, but there is an awakening in all sections and it looks like the politicians will be run over by the people if they don't get out of the way.

The character of any community is what the individual citizens make it. The average character of the citizenship fixes the character of the whole.

CAPT. AND MRS. E. FRAZEE.

The above cut is that of Captain and Mrs. E. Frazee, who have come to this city representing that worldwide organization, the Salvation Army.

They are permanently establishing their work in Winchester. Every one knows that the aim of the Salvation Army is to work among the poor, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, rescuing fallen girls, taking the gospel to the unchurched masses, and in every way trying to alleviate the suffering of those unable to help themselves.

In the future if anyone knowing a case needing attention will call the Salvation Army they will be more than glad to attend to it. This worthy organization should have the co-operation of every citizen of Winchester.

Their street address and phone number will appear later.

W. C. and Georgetown Colleges.

The last football game to be played in Winchester this season will be played at Garner's Park, Saturday, November 5th. Kentucky Wesleyan meets Georgetown on this date. This will be a game hard fought, but a clean one as the two colleges are contestants for the honor of third place in the State. The football dope is about even. State won from Wesleyan 42 to 0 and defeated Georgetown 35 to 0.

Last year Wesleyan had a much better team than Georgetown. However, owing to over-confidence they lost by the score of 22 to 0. It will be impossible for such exultation to befall the Wesleyan team this year as they are in ideal condition and know they will be up against a hard proposition as Georgetown is going to fight for their lives.

The officials will be Van Meter referee; Brown, of Yale, and McKinley alternating as umpires, and field judge.

SPLENDID PRODUCTION.

The advance sale for "The House of a Thousand Candles" which will be presented at the Winchester opera house on Saturday, matinee and night indicates that a large audience will witness the first production of that much talked of play here. The fact that it is a drama of unusual qualities is becoming well-known and the oddity of its story is receiving no end of comment. Its success throughout the country has been so great that it is doubtful if there is a more discussed dramatic production. The company that will present this weird drama is of special strength and includes George D. Winn, one of the me in this race. I have here the affidavit of Mr. Will H. Auxier, Census Enumerator for the enumeration precinct in which I reside, in which he swears that I willingly gave him my census list at Pikeville. I also have here the certificate of Mr. J. F. Paul, of Pikeville, the Census Supervisor for this Congressional District. I will read that. No, I see that Mr. Pauley has just arrived from Pikeville. Mr. Pauley, did I or did I not give my census schedule to your enumerator at Pikeville?

Mr. Pauley: You did. (Applause.) Mr. Byrd has intimated that I subsequently fixed up this schedule when I found out that it was going to be used against me. Was it given at the time that the other schedules were taken by the enumerator?

Mr. Pauley: It was. (Applause.) And was it or was it not sent on to Washington with your report last spring along with the other schedules?

Mr. Pauley: It was. (Applause.) Now, Mr. Byrd, you have violated one of the rules of evidence, which is, that secondary evidence cannot be produced when primary evidence is available. Not only that, but you have sought to mislead the people by hearsay testimony, when you could have gone or sent to Pikeville and verified the report that had been made to you. Why didn't you send "Sonny" Stafford over there? He is not doing you any good where he is. (Loud applause and laughter.) Or you might have sent your friend, Bill May, up there. He has finished his triumphal tour of the District, along with "Sonny." (Applause), and sometimes they had as many as forty and fifty people of hear them speak. (Laughter.)

Mr. Byrd, you are the nominee of a great political party. You have charged me here with something that I have conclusively disproved. I hope you were misled about this matter. But if you were not, if I were you, I would get a pand admit to this crowd that I had misrepresented my opponent, and I would go back to the other places where I had made the same statement and apologize to the people there for misrepresenting him. And if you don't do it, you ought to withdraw from this race, and if you refuse to do either, the people will attend to it on the 8th of November.

Another thing: I have a stenographic report of Mr. Byrd's speech at West Liberty. Among other things he said: "Mr. Langley has no interests in common with the people of the District, and I am told"—hearsay evidence again—(Laughter)—"I am told by the people of that county that during all these years he has paid no taxes and that he had paid them only for the last year." Why, Mr. Byrd, I only moved to Pike county about two years ago. I have paid my taxes three for there for the first year and have been assessed for the second year, and I hope and believe I will pay the assessment when it comes due. (Applause.)

Mr. Byrd says that I am not a lawyer. Well, the people know me here too well and my history too well to dispute about that. I attended the law schools for eight years in Washington, receiving the first prize in two of them, and had conferred upon me all of the degrees that the universities of the country confer. I got this education by night study. I came home and practiced law—not as much as Mr. Byrd has practiced, it is true—but I practiced law, and for several years I was chief law officer of one of the great bureaus in Washington. He says that I never had a case in court in my life. Why, Mr. Byrd, the court records are right here within thirty feet of where I am standing. You can find three scores of cases on the record, where I was the attorney of record, when I was located here in the practice of law. Why did you not examine those records and get the facts, instead of permitting somebody to make such a statement as you have made. Of course, you are a good lawyer, Mr. Byrd. Nobody questions that. And that is one reason why the people are going to keep you on the job. They don't want to spoil a good lawyer in order to make a poor Congressman. (Loud Applause.)

You said at West Liberty, according to this certified copy of your remarks which I have here, (and you said practically the same thing a while ago) that I introduced a bill proposing to pension Confederate soldiers, that it was pigeon-holed by the Committee and that I never tried to have it brought to light again; and that I only introduced this bill to try to rob the old Confederate soldiers of their votes and deceive them. These are pretty serious words, Mr.

Byrd. They mean, if they mean anything, that the Representative of this District, acting upon the oath of office and his conscience, has deliberately introduced a measure and had it killed in the Committee, and that he has been playing double with the people merely for the purpose of getting their votes. If what you say about this Confederate bill is correct, then I not only ought not to be re-elected, but I ought to be expelled from the House of Representatives. If I introduced such a bill, it is necessarily of record. There is only one man who could deserve greater condemnation at the hands of the people than such a Representative, and that is the man who will charge that Representative with such a serious thing and fail to produce the evidence to support his charge. (Loud Applause.) Now, Mr. Byrd, it is two weeks from today until the election day. You have plenty of time to get the record from Washington and produce it to the people. You can send "Sonny" or Bill up there after it, if you are too busy yourself. (Laughter.) Bring the record here. Prove what you say, and I say now, in the presence of these thousands of people, that I will withdraw from this race. If you fail to do that, you ought to go back to West Liberty and the other places where you have made this statement, and apologize to them for having misrepresented me and my record in Congress. Now, I will tell you what I did do.

In the first place, I have taken the position that after the lapse of nearly half a century, the old prejudice of the war should be forgotten. I have contended that the law barring pensions to Union soldiers, on account of a prior Confederate service should be repealed, and I tried to have it repealed. I aided in the passage of a resolution giving the old Confederate soldiers two years more time in which to file claims for horses, saddles and bridles taken from them at the close of the war in violation of the terms of surrender, and making the sum of about twenty-five thousand dollars, which has been lying idle in the Treasury for some years, available to pay these claims and it was upon my motion that this resolution passed the House of Representatives. It has been signed by the President and is now a law. This resolution will help a good many old Confederate soldiers. It will only give them a small amount of money, it is true—a hundred dollars or so—but it will help them some. I shall charitably assume that you had this resolution in mind when you were speaking about the Confederate pensions, although you ought to have posted yourself before undertaking to speak about it. The trouble about Mr. Byrd is, ladies and gentlemen, he doesn't seem to understand the difference between a pension claim and a horse claim. (Loud Applause) and until he does, he has no business representing this District which has so many soldiers in it. (Applause.)

Mr. Byrd, you used this language in your speech at West Liberty, referring to the case of Mr. David Fannin, of Elliott county, whose pardon I recently assisted in getting the Governor to grant: "The pardon is finally issued. It does not go to the man who is indicted, but it is addressed to Honorable John W. Langley. The pardon comes to him, instead of to the man who needs it, and Mr. Langley takes that to the poor unfortunate man and says, 'If you vote for me, you get the pardon; if you don't vote for me, you don't get the pardon.' He takes advantage of that man's misfortune."

I have here the affidavit of Mr. David Fannin absolutely repudiating this statement of Mr. Byrd. The affidavit is as follows:

State of Kentucky Set.
Elliott county

The affiant, Dave Fannin, says that he has read an extract from Mr. Byrd's speech at West Liberty, October 8th, in which Mr. Byrd said that Mr. Langley came to him (Fannin) and said, after letting him know that he had him a pardon: "If you vote for me, you get the pardon, if you don't vote for me, you don't get the pardon." The affiant says that no such conversation occurred and Mr. Langley made no such demand of him; that Mr. Langley took up the case and got the pardon without ever having an interview with him at all, and that the pardon was delivered to affiant before Mr. Langley saw him here at Sandy Hook and that Mr. Langley never asked him to vote for him or to do anything for him because of the fact that he got the pardon.

(Signed) DAVID FANNIN.
Subscribed and sworn to by Dave Fannin before me this 20th day of October, 1910. My commission expires January 24th, 1912.

(Signed)
J. H. WEDDINGTON, N. P. E. C.
Mr. Byrd, you are not going to get any considerable majority in Elliott county (applause and laughter), but if you will say that this affidavit is not true, or that the signatures to it are not genuine, you will never get any majority in Elliott county. (Applause.) If this affidavit is true, what does it mean? It means that you have charged me with infamous conduct, conduct that is unworthy of any man. You have charged me, your friend, with that sort of conduct and I have here fully disproved it. It is your duty as an honorable man to go back to the people to whom you have made this statement and apologize to them for having misled them. Say, if you wish to, that others misled you into making the statement. I hope that is true. You cannot win a race that way, Mr. Byrd. The people believe in fair and square dealing. You cannot win a race either before the people, by springing, at the last hours of the campaign, something that your opponent has not a chance to answer.

You said at West Liberty, and you repeated it again here today, that I am opposed to the income tax and that I have been fighting it and working against it ever since I have been in Congress. Why, Mr. Byrd, I have always been in favor of the income tax and nearly eighteen months ago in the House of Representatives at Washington, I spoke in support of it. I have here a copy of my speech thousands of which are being circulated in the District. Here, take this copy and read it. (Applause and laughter.) It will do you good and give you some valuable information on the subject.

You say that I announced at Pikeville that you were against the lumber trust and that I was in favor of it and that I said that the lumber trust is saving the people of this country. Why, Mr. Byrd, I have not yet made a speech in this campaign at Pikeville, or in Pike county, and I never said any such thing anywhere. (Applause.) I am just as much opposed to trusts as you are. What I did say was that I favored that sort of legislation that will make the price of our lumber just as high as possible, because we have lumber to sell and we want a good price for it; and so do the laborers who are employed in the lumber business, because that means more wages for them.

You said at West Liberty and at other points in the District that I had made promises in Clark county that I had not kept, and you say that they have written evidence of that promise signed by me. Of course your refer to the contest over the post office there, which was recently settled by the appointment of Mr. White. The duty devolved upon me of making a recommendation in the case. I carefully considered all the endorsements. I gave much time and thought to this case, and I acted in accordance with my best judgment considering the whole situation. You say that I made a written promise to appoint a certain applicant there and that I violated the promise, or rather you say, "they say I did." Do you realize, Mr. Byrd, that such a charge involves a man's integrity and that such a charge should not be made unless you know it to be true? It is two weeks yet until the election. You have plenty of time to produce that written promise, if you are telling the truth about it. If you can produce such a promise signed by me, I will agree to withdraw from this race. You cannot produce it because I never gave it, and therefore it does not exist. (Applause.)

You say that I am claiming all the credit for the appropriation for the public building at Winchester. I have not done so. Mr. Hopkins, my immediate predecessor, secured an appropriation of forty-five thousand dollars, and I am willing to give him credit for what little he did while he was in Congress. (Laughter.) I got that increased to seventy thousand dollars and introduced a bill to increase it to one hundred thousand, and promised that it should be done if I could aid in bringing it about. Senators Paynter and Bradley got an additional item of thirty thousand dollars inserted in the Senate, and through my efforts that item was passed by the House. These are the facts, and that is all I have ever claimed.

Now, here is another thing that you have been claiming, that I have the evidence here to refute. You say that ex-Congressman N. T. Hopkins is for you and is going to take the stump for you. I have here a letter from Mr. Hopkins, authorizing me to deny your assertions. (Applause.) You have charged me with confining my efforts to help the soldiers to the cases of those who vote the Republican ticket and of favoring pension legislation only for that purpose. The soldiers of this district know that I have worked for them without regard to politics. I have secured the passage of special acts for Democratic soldiers and I have worked unceasingly to aid them in presenting their claims at the Pension office, and I have done this without regard to politics. You say in a letter you have here, which you are addressing to the soldiers, that, if you will say that this affidavit is not true, or that the signatures to it are entitled under existing law. Remember that, friends. He says, "under existing law." Observe that he carefully avoids committing himself to any amendment to the pension law, just as his platform avoids promising anything on that score. He does not even propose to support the proposition recently endorsed by the Grand Army of the Republic to increase the pension rate under the age law, to twenty dollars at seventy years of age, and twenty-five dollars at seventy-five years of age. He says he will work to get you what you are entitled to under existing law. I have had nearly ten years of experience as an employee of the Government service that I thoroughly understand, it is the pension work. And I submit to you whether I can be of more service to you in presenting your claims than a man who knows nothing about the work.

I have tried to make this campaign on a high and honorable plane. I have not indulged in personalities. I have scrupulously avoided making any statement that would misrepresent you in the slightest degree. I have endeavored to confine myself to a discussion of the issues and a recital of the facts. On the other hand you have made, as I have already shown, nearly a dozen statements about me and my record, which I have contradicted by indisputable evidence. The people believe in fair dealing. If I were in your situation today, I would frankly acknowledge that I had been misled about these matters, and then take my chances with the voters. If you don't do that you will, in my judgment, be buried beneath an avalanche of votes cast by the people of this district, regardless of politics, who believe in a square deal. (Loud and prolonged applause.)
